Reasons for Allowance

6. The following is an Examiner's statement of reasons for allowance:

The cited prior art taken alone or in combination fail to teach, in combination with the other claimed limitations, "a service acquisition unit that acquires plural services for a document available to a user for each function constituting a job flow by using updated user information, wherein the user information is updated when at least one of the plural services is selected to constitute the job flow without execution of the at least one selected service of the plural services before the completion of the job flow, and the plural services available to the user being determined by content of a restriction value table expressing restrictions on execution of services for the document and values of the updated user information are checked against values of the restriction value table before a next selection of a service until an end of the job flow" as recited in independent Claim 1; and further fail to teach, in combination with the other claimed limitations, similarly-worded limitations recited in independent Claim 7.

The closest cited prior art, the combination of US 2002/0052796 (hereinafter “Tadokoro”) and US 6,092,088 (hereinafter “Takeda”), teaches techniques for allowing a user access to a plurality of services through a common access point. However, the combination of Tadokoro and Takeda fails to teach “a service acquisition unit that acquires plural services for a document available to a user for each function constituting a job flow by using updated user information, wherein the user information is updated when at least one of the plural services is selected to constitute the job flow without execution of the at least one selected service of the plural services before the completion of the job flow, and the plural services available to the user being determined by content of a restriction value table expressing restrictions on execution of services for the document and values of the updated user information are checked against values of the restriction value table before a next selection of a service until an end of the job flow” as recited in independent Claim 1; and further fails to teach similarly-worded limitations recited in independent Claim 7.

Any comments considered necessary by Applicant must be submitted no later than the payment of the issue fee and, to avoid processing delays, should preferably accompany the issue fee. Such submissions should be clearly labeled “Comments on Statement of Reasons for Allowance.”
